NASDAQ's 15th anniversary year, 1986 was a landmark year for our market. In addition to breaking many records, some of which were set only the year before, NASDAQ played a leading role in shaping the global equity market of tomorrow.

NASDAQ Market Performance

The NASDAQ market had an exceptional year in 1986. The dollar volume of trading reached $378 billion, up a full 62 percent from 1985, and annual share volume aggregated 28.7 billion shares, up 38.8 percent from 1985.

On April 17th, more than 155 million shares traded, a new single-day record. Throughout the year, daily trading volume averaged an unprecedented 113.6 million shares. On 21 days, volume in the NASDAQ market exceed that of the New York Stock Exchange, and NASDAQ's weekly share volume exceeded the NYSE's on three occasions.

The number of companies on the NASDAQ System reached 4,417 by year end, and the number of securities grew to 5,189. The aggregate market value of NASDAQ securities climbed to $340.9 billion, up 18.7 percent from 1985.

All of NASDAQ's 11 market indices recorded gains for the year with 10 of them setting records in 1986. The Transportation Index and the Bank Index registered the largest gains at year end, 19.6 and 18.1 percent, respectively. The market's broadest index, the NASDAQ Composite, composed of 4,219 securities, advanced 7.4 percent.

NASDAQ/NMS

In 1986, NASDAQ/NMS trading of 19.7 billion shares accounted for 69 percent of NASDAQ's annual volume. Average daily share volume for NASDAQ/NMS issues equaled 77.8 million for the year. The year-end aggregate market value of NASDAQ/NMS securities was $318.3 billion, which represented 93 percent of total NASDAQ market value; 31.1 percent of NASDAQ/NMS market value, or $99.1 billion, was institutionally held.

About 42 percent of NASDAQ/NMS volume is in blocks of 10,000 shares or more, with the average block transaction exceeding 20,000 shares.

International Activity

In 1986, NASDAQ and the London Stock Exchange forged the first intercontinental linkage of major world markets. An important step in the development of a world equity market, the link involves the exchange of real-time electronic quotations for more than 550 world-class issues. In due course, this quotation link will be augmented by a number of planned enhancements, including an exchange of actual trade data, an automated execution capability and an international clearance and settlement linkage.

Volume in the 88 American Depositary Receipts (ADRs) and 178 foreign securities in the NASDAQ market increased more than 70 percent from 1985, to 2.4 billion. In the same period, the dollar volume of trading in ADRs and foreign securities doubled to nearly $25 billion. In addition, the overseas network of terminals now carrying NASDAQ data grew by 37 percent. Today, 20,000 terminals, out of a total of 156,000, are located in 44 foreign countries and territories.

In 1986, the Zurich-based Association of International Bond Dealers (AIBD) retained the NASD as a consultant to design an automated system for the $3.6 trillion Eurobond market, the largest capital market after the U.S. Treasury market. The computerized system, designated AIBDQ, for AIBD Quotations, would make the Eurobond market the first fixed-income market to offer computer displays of market data, including current quotations.

Throughout the year, NASD representatives worked co-operatively with overseas markets and regulatory bodies to help formulate rules, procedures and automated systems related to global trading. In 1986, the NASD participated in meetings with industry and government officials from Australia, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, New Zealand, Singapore, Sweden, Taiwan, the United Kingdom and West Germany.

Expanded Capacity

In 1986, the NASD opened a new Operations Center in Rockville, Maryland, to increase NASDAQ's capacity for future growth. This ultra-modern 110,000-square-foot center, built at a cost of $17.3 million, will house a complete disaster-recovery and back-up system for NASDAQ. The Center, which supports the NASDAQ System's current 200-million-share-per-day capacity, is designed to ensure continuous operation of the NASDAQ market in the event of a major system outage, whether at the data processing center in Trumbull, Connecticut, at a major communication facility, at concentrator sites, or in communications trunk lines.

The NASD also purchased and installed equipment to enable high-speed transfer of information among the diverse computers used in the NASDAQ System. Other System improvements include the addition of four network processors, the completion of a major expansion of the NASDAQ Data Center in Trumbull, and the acquisition of an additional Sperry Univac 1100/84 mainframe.

Systems Development Work

In 1986, the NASD completed a substantial amount of developmental work on a variety of member and market services.

The most important of these services involves the next generation of NASDAQ terminals. Like the existing terminal, the new version will be used by brokers and dealers to update their quotations and monitor the market. But unlike the existing version, the new terminal is a personal computer that accepts an encoded data stream and stores virtually the complete NASDAQ database. The technology incorporated in the new terminal will provide a wealth of features never before available on NASDAQ equipment: market minding, dynamic screen updates, personalized tickers, parameter break alerts and trade quote reviews. Traders participating in previews have responded enthusiastically to the new terminals, which will be introduced in mid-1987.

Work is also underway on a semi-automated facility for processing trades of every size, and a new ticker broadcast service will be available in the first half of 1987.

Market Regulation

During the year, the NASD implemented a series of recommendations to regulate short selling practices in the over-the-counter market. These included public dissemination, via the financial press, of members' and customers' open short interest positions in NASDAQ securities.

In 1986, the SEC proposed transferring to the NASD the authority to set qualification standards for NASDAQ/NMS securities. The proposal would remedy a technical problem the NASD has encountered in seeking to adopt corporate governance rules as additional NASDAQ/NMS eligibility criteria.

In 1986, Florida, Kansas and Rhode Island joined a growing number of states in exempting NASDAQ/NMS securities from registration requirements under state blue-sky laws. These exemptions recognize the parity of NASDAQ/NMS issues with securities traded on the New York and American Stock Exchanges. Additional states are expected to take similar action in 1987.

Throughout the year, the NASD took a number of actions to strengthen its surveillance of the NASDAQ market. These included a 15 percent increase in regulatory staff positions (to nearly 800), implementation of planned enhancements to the equity audit trail, and initiation of work on a new automated surveillance program to improve the NASD's ability to detect insider trading.

As this Fact Book goes to press, it appears that 1987 will be a third successive record-breaking year for the NASDAQ market. In the first quarter of the year, volume was 9.6 billion shares, 30% higher than the share volume in the corresponding period of 1986, and a daily volume record of 261.9 million shares was set on January 23. The NASDAQ Composite Index was up 23.3%, and aggregate NASDAQ market value rose to more than $425 billion.

[1] Reported share volume in NASDAQ/NMS issues, which accounted for 68.6 percent of total share volume in 1986, is calculated from real-time, last-sale reports entered into the NASDAQ System within 90 seconds of the time the transaction occurred, in the same manner that volume in exchange-listed securities is reported to the Consolidated Tape Association (CTA). Volume in non-NMS issues is calculated from end-of-day market-maker reports to the system in each security. The net change in the market maker's inventory plus the number of shares that he has both bought and sold (i.e., the larger of his total buys or total sells) is accumulated by the system from all market-maker reports, aggregating to total volume for non-NMS.

[2] NASDAQ daily dollar volume is the sum of each issue's daily share volume multiplied by the closing inside bid price, except that for NASDAQ/NMS securities, the daily share volume is multiplied by the last-sale price. Monthly dollar volume is the total of daily dollar volume for all trading days in the month.

[3] The price of an average share traded is computed by dividing dollar volume by share volume.

NASDAQ National Market System Stock Table

Explanation of Table

- The NASDAQ symbol by which the security is identified in the NASDAQ System, on NASDAQ terminals and on securities salespersons' terminals.
- The name of the issue.[1]
- The 1986 share volume in the security. This figure is a combination of the 1986 volume in the security both before and after it entered NASDAQ/NMS, if the security entered NASDAQ/NMS during 1986.
- The 1986 high, low and last-sale prices for the security. The high and low prices may be either bid quotations (intra-day or end-of-day) or actual transaction prices, depending on whether the high and low prices were established before or after the security entered NASDAQ/NMS. The 1986 closing price is always an actual transaction price.
- The 1985 final adjusted inside bid/price. This is a quotation and not a transaction price of the security if it entered NASDAQ/NMS during 1986. If the security had a stock split or dividend during 1986, as shown by the † symbol, the 1985 final adjusted inside bid price has been adjusted accordingly. For example, if the actual 1985 final inside bid price was 20 and the stock was split 2-for-1 in 1986, the 1985 final adjusted inside bid price is 10.
- The net change and the percent change, reflecting the difference between the 1985 final adjusted inside bid price and the 1986 last transaction price. An asterisk [*] indicates that the security entered the NASDAQ System during 1986 and that the changes from 1985 are actually the changes from the closing price on its first day of quotation in 1986.

[1]As of November 13, 1984, all NASDAQ/NMS issues are automatically marginable on entering NASDAQ/NMS.

NASDAQ System Stock Table

The following stock table covers the 2,494 NASDAQ issues not on the NASDAQ National Market System. The individual performance data for the 2,695 NASDAQ/NMS securities begins on page 27.

Explanation of Table

- The NASDAQ symbol by which the security is identified in the NASDAQ System, on NASDAQ terminals and on securities salespersons' terminals.
- The name of the issue, followed by (M) if eligible for purchase in margin accounts.
- The 1986 share volume in the security.
- The 1986 high bid price, either intra-day or end-of-day.
- The 1986 low bid price, either intra-day or end-of-day.
- The 1986 closing bid price.
- The 1985 final adjusted inside bid price. Adjustments made for stock splits or dividends are indicated by the † symbol.
- The net change and percent change, reflecting the difference between the 1985 final adjusted inside bid price and the 1986 closing bid price. An asterisk [*] indicates that the security entered the NASDAQ System during 1986 and that the changes from 1985 are actually the changes from the closing inside bid price on its first day of quotation in 1986.

Market-Value Distribution According to Number of Market Makers

Each NASDAQ security must have at least two market makers before it can enter the NASDAQ System. This prerequisite preserves the competitive environment that is the hallmark of NASDAQ's multiple market-maker system.

The chart below reflects the number of issues in NASDAQ and NASDAQ/NMS with their corresponding number of market makers. The chart shows a strong, positive relationship between the size of the issue, as measured by market capitalization, and the number of active market makers.

The NASDAQ System: New Facilities and Improved Systems

In 1986, the NASD prepared the NASDAQ System for its growing participation in the world equities market.

NASD Operations Center Opens

The addition of a new operations center in Rockville, Maryland, gives the NASD and NASDAQ the capability to meet today's needs and provides an almost unlimited capacity for future growth. This new ultra-modern 110,000-square-foot center, built at a cost of $17.3 million, houses the first complete disaster-recovery and back-up system of any securities market in the world. The center, which supports the NASDAQ System's current 200-million-shares-per-day capacity, is designed to ensure continuous operation of the NASDAQ market in the event of a major system outage — whether at the data processing center in Trumbull, Connecticut, at a major communication facility, at concentrator sites, or in communication trunk lines.

About 350 automation and administrative support personnel now work in the new operations center.

System Service Performance

For each of the 253 trading days in 1986, the NASDAQ System handled an average of 1.7 million quote requests and updates, with an average response time of 2.5 seconds. The overall System uptime rate for the year averaged 99.1 percent. Meantime to repair terminals averaged 2.5 hours in 1986.

System Improvements

The NASD also purchased and installed equipment to enable high-speed transfer of information among the diverse computers used in the NASDAQ System. Other System improvements include the addition of four network processors, the completion of a major expansion of the NASDAQ Data Center in Connecticut and the acquisition of an additional Sperry Univac 1100/84 mainframe.

NASDAQ Expands Internationally

The year 1986 was a pivotal one in the evolution of global equity trading, and the NASDAQ market played a leading role in it.

NASDAQ's Standing in the World

In terms of dollar volume of equity trading, NASDAQ is the third-largest market in the world. NASDAQ's dollar volume of trading reached $378.2 billion in 1986, up a full 62 percent from 1985. NYSE dollar volume was $1,374.3 billion while that of the Tokyo Stock Exchange was $958.1 billion. The next eight largest markets in 1986 after NASDAQ were: West German ($150.8 billion); London ($134.3 billion); Midwest ($99.9 billion); Zurich ($78.4 billion); Paris ($55.6 billion); Pacific ($51.2 billion); Toronto ($45.7 billion); and Amex ($44.5 billion).

Activity in Overseas Securities on NASDAQ

Volume in the 88 American Depositary Receipts (ADRs) and 178 foreign securities in the NASDAQ market increased more than 70 percent in 1986, from 1.4 to 2.4 billion. In the same period, the dollar volume of trading in ADRs and foreign securities doubled from $12.5 to $24.9 billion. In addition, the overseas network of terminals now carrying NASDAQ data grew by 37 percent. At year end, about 20,000 terminals, out of a total population of 156,000, were located in 44 foreign countries and territories.

The NASDAQ/London Link

NASDAQ's international operations moved into high gear in April 1986 with the inauguration of a link with the London Stock Exchange, the first intercontinental link of major securities markets. In due course, this quotation link will be augmented by a number of planned enhancements, including an exchange of actual trade data, an automated execution capability and an international clearance and settlement linkage.

Today, London's TOPIC terminals display the bids and offers of competing U.S. market makers for 270 NASDAQ issues. These include the stocks of 200 major U.S. companies and the ADRs of 70 non-U.K. firms. NASDAQ terminals now carry current quotations on 288 stocks from London, including the 100 issues in the Financial Times-Stock Exchange 100 Index and 188 international stocks displayed on SEAQ, London's electronic service that transmits live quotations from competing international market makers.

Foreign Institutional Investors in NASDAQ Stocks

More than 20 percent of the institutions that invested in the NASDAQ market in 1986 are located in foreign countries, with the largest numbers in Canada, the United Kingdom, France, Switzerland and West Germany. Financial institutions in other countries in Europe, the Middle East and the Pacific Basin also actively invest in NASDAQ securities.

NASD Assists AIBD

In 1986, the Zurich-based Association of International Bond Dealers (AIBD) retained the NASD as a consultant to design an automated system for the $3.57 trillion Eurobond market, the largest capital market after the U.S. Treasury market. The computerized system, designated AIBDQ for AIBD Quotations, would make the Eurobond market the first fixed-income market to offer computer displays of market data, including current quotations.

NASD Services to NASDAQ Companies

Companies on NASDAQ are provided a variety of services. For specific information about the services outlined below, contact the NASDAQ Company Services Department at (202) 728-8333.

Information Services

In addition to the NASDAQ Fact Book, the NASD makes the following publications available to NASDAQ companies:

- Monthly Statistical Report (MSR) — Each NASDAQ company receives an MSR summarizing the prior month's activity in its stock. The MSR includes daily and weekly high, low and last-sale prices, net changes, share volume, number of trades and the names of the market makers in the company's stock. The MSR also includes general market information, such as daily and weekly NASDAQ and NASDAQ/NMS volume figures and Composite Index closing values.

- NASDAQ Notes — This monthly newsletter contains brief news items of general interest to NASDAQ companies, highlights current market activity and lists new additions to the NASDAQ National Market System.

- NASDAQ Company Directory — Published semi-annually, the directory lists the company's name and headquarters' address; its NASDAQ security symbol and its standard industrial classification (SIC) code; and the name, title and telephone number of the company official responsible for investor relations and media contacts.

- NASDAQ News — A sister publication to NASDAQ Notes, this bulletin features regulatory developments that may affect NASDAQ companies. NASDAQ News explains technical requirements in layman-like language and offers suggestions for complying with these requirements.

- Investor Relations: A Practical Guide for NASDAQ Companies — This handbook, for investor-relations beginners as well as for experienced executives, provides information on developing and building a sound investor relations program.

- Reporting Requirements for NASDAQ Companies — This booklet explains NASD and SEC reporting requirements.

- Reference Guide for NASDAQ Companies — This new publication provides practical information to help NASDAQ companies fulfill their responsibilities as publicly held companies. The handbook includes information on financial reporting requirements, fees, margin criteria, NASDAQ/NMS qualification criteria, market-maker rules and guidelines for disseminating material news.

• Academic Studies — Important academic studies and research of the NASDAQ market are periodically distributed by the NASD to NASDAQ companies and other interested parties. Also, from time to time, the NASD contracts with academic researchers and consulting experts to study matters of interest to NASDAQ market participants. In 1986, two studies were completed that provide insight into the demographics of investors in the NASDAQ market. Studies on shareholder voting rights and short-sale regulation in the NASDAQ market were commissioned by the NASD and subsequently distributed to all companies.

Education Services

To keep NASDAQ company CEOs informed of developments in the market in which their companies' stocks trade, the NASD sponsors a variety of seminars and workshops.

• NASDAQ CEO Conferences — Conferences are held each year in cities around the country to give NASDAQ company CEOs an opportunity to meet and discuss a variety of subjects with their peers, as well as with members of the NASD Board of Governors and the senior staff.

The subjects selected for these conferences cover a wide range of topics, including operating effective investor relations programs, developing relationships with market makers and securities analysts, gaining access to the international equity market, corporate governance issues and developments in the NASDAQ market. The CEO conferences also provide useful forums for industry and government experts to share their ideas and analyses of events of special interest to NASDAQ company executives.

• Investor Relations/Market Maker Seminars — These in-depth workshops, developed at the request of NASDAQ companies, are held two or three times a year in major cities. The seminars include a series of concurrent workshops, each devoted to a single subject, led by an expert in that particular field.

Although participants at these seminars present a cross section of the diverse universe of NASDAQ companies, they share common concerns related to managing effective programs in investor and financial relations. The interplay among members of this diverse yet interrelated group provides a creative atmosphere for exchanging ideas.

• New NASDAQ Company Orientation Meetings — The NASD provides a six-hour orientation program for companies whose securities are newly admitted to the NASDAQ System.

Company executives learn firsthand how the NASDAQ market works. A demonstration of the NASDAQ System is featured that includes the process by which market makers update quotations, report transactions and execute customer orders through the NASD's Small Order Execution System. Those attending the session discuss with the staff the questions they have on such topics as the obligations and responsibilities of being a NASDAQ company and the functioning and operation of the NASDAQ System.

Consulting Services

The NASDAQ Corporate Consultant Program is a no-charge, on-site consulting service available to companies included on the NASDAQ System. Through this program, NASDAQ companies receive assistance on a wide variety of issues, such as relations with market makers, regulatory changes that affect companies and working effectively with investment bankers and securities analysts.

NASDAQ companies are visited by NASD representatives on a regular basis. Special visits can also be arranged.

Although most company contacts are with the Chairman, President or Chief Financial Officer, the consultants will discuss any subject important to the company with the most appropriate individual or group. Consultants are also available to meet with the boards of NASDAQ companies and, on occasion, with shareholders at companies' annual meetings.

Regulatory Actions Affecting the NASDAQ Market

Blue-Sky Progress

In 1986, Kansas, Florida and Rhode Island joined the growing number of states that grant NASDAQ/NMS companies automatic exemptions from securities registration requirements. These exemptions recognize the parity of NASDAQ/NMS issues with securities traded on the New York and American stock exchanges.

NASDAQ/NMS Designation Authority

The SEC issued a proposal in 1986 that would transfer to the NASD the authority to set qualification standards for designation as NASDAQ/NMS securities. The proposal would remedy a technical problem the NASD has encountered in seeking to adopt corporate governance rules as additional NASDAQ/NMS eligibility criteria.

Unlisted Trading Privileges

Throughout 1986, the NASD worked with interested exchanges on a plan for exchange trading of certain NASDAQ securities under an SEC-approved rule granting exchanges unlisted trading privileges. The plan would require participating exchanges to transmit quotations and transaction reports in eligible securities to NASDAQ as the securities information processor. A pilot is projected to begin in 1987.

Research on the NASDAQ Market Continues

Two NASD-commissioned studies that were completed in 1986 provide an insight into the demographics of investors in the NASDAQ market. Opinion Research Corporation conducted a survey of individual investors, and the Rodney L. White Center of the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School examined institutional participation in the NASDAQ market.

Individual Investor Survey

According to the findings of Opinion Research Corporation, an estimated 45.8 million Americans owned shares in at least one publicly traded company at the end of 1985. Of the 36.6 million shareowners whose stock ownership can be accurately classified by trading market, 24 percent hold OTC shares, 20 percent hold NASDAQ stocks and 16 percent (or 5.9 million individual shareowners) hold NASDAQ/NMS stocks. Nearly 9 million individual shareowners own at least one OTC security, and 7.3 million of them own at least one NASDAQ security. More than 6.6 million shareowners hold equity mutual funds.

Slightly more than half, or 56 percent, of all OTC shareowners hold listed securities or equity mutual funds as well; 3.9 million shareowners hold OTC stocks exclusively. Another 4 million shareowners hold stocks exclusively through equity mutual funds, and most of these funds include OTC stocks in their portfolios.

The results can also be stated in terms of households. Of the 21 million shareowning households whose holdings could be classified by trading market, 24 percent, or over 5 million households, own OTC stocks. NASDAQ stocks are held by 20 percent.

The survey provides an in-depth profile of financial decision makers for households that own OTC and NASDAQ stocks. These decision makers are generally older and, compared to shareowning households overall and those holding equity mutual funds, they are more likely to be male and married. The median age for all U.S. household decision makers is 41. Shareowning decision makers overall have a median age of 44; the median age of OTC decision makers is 43, and the median age of equity mutual funds decision makers is 46. Sixty-five percent of OTC household decision makers are men, compared with 49 percent of all decision makers and 60 percent of all shareowning decision makers. Seventy percent of OTC household decision makers are married, compared with 57 percent of all household decision makers and 60 percent of decision makers who own non-OTC stocks.

Decision makers who own OTC stocks tend to be better educated and are more likely to be employed in a professional or managerial capacity than the total shareowner population. Fifty-four percent of these decision makers have completed college, and the same percentage classified themselves as professionals or managers. These proportions are higher than comparable figures for the total shareowner population, which are 47 and 44 percent, respectively.

OTC households also tend to be financially better off and more optimistic about their financial futures. Eighty-two percent of OTC shareowners are homeowners, versus 76 percent of all shareowners. The median household value of total assets, stock portfolios and 1984 income for OTC shareowning households is $70,000, $12,000 and $44,000, respectively, compared to $55,000, $9,000 and $41,000, respectively, for shareowners overall. Sixty-one percent of decision makers owning OTC stocks said they expected to be financially better off next year, compared to an overall shareowner proportion of 55 percent.

In general, NASDAQ and OTC households are more active in and familiar with securities markets. Over two thirds of NASDAQ and OTC households own more than one stock, and 53 percent have a securities account with a broker. Two thirds of OTC shareowners acquired stock through a broker at least once, while one third obtained stock through an employee stock-purchase plan. Overall, 37 percent of shareowning households have an account with a securities broker, and over four in 10 own more than one stock. About half of all non-OTC shareowning households acquired stock through employee stock-purchase plans, and about half purchased stock from a broker at least once.

The investment habits and philosophies of decision makers who own OTC stocks were also surveyed. Twenty-six percent of OTC decision makers entered the market for the first time during or after 1983. Fifty-three percent of these households have a current trading account with a securities broker, but only 13 percent have established a margin account. The financial decision makers reported they made, on average, six individual transactions in their trading accounts during the last 12 months.

OTC decision makers are more likely to rate price appreciation over risk as an important consideration when choosing a stock. Fifty-nine percent said the risk associated with a stock is very important, and 74 percent rated price appreciation as very important. Most OTC decision makers agree that market liquidity and institutional participation are at least somewhat important.

Study of Institutional Participation

According to the research conducted by The Wharton School, the dollar value of NASDAQ/OTC stocks in institutional investor portfolios more than tripled during the period 1980 to 1985. Survey data show that the holdings of NASDAQ/OTC stocks in institutional portfolios rose from $20 billion at year-end 1979 to $68.6 billion in mid-1985, an increase of 243 percent.

NASDAQ/OTC stocks accounted for 8.4 percent of institutional portfolios in June 1985 compared to 5.5 percent of the value in those portfolios in 1979; in the same period, NYSE stocks declined from 93.2 to 90.3 percent of institutional portfolios. Looked at another way, the percentage of the value of NASDAQ/OTC stocks held by institutions almost doubled in mid-1985, moving from 14.2 percent of the total market value of NASDAQ/OTC stocks in 1979 to 25.1 percent in mid-1985.

Investment advisers were clearly the largest segment of institutional investors in this trend, increasing their dollar value of institutional holdings by 617.1 percent, from $4.1 billion to $29.4 billion. Investment companies, principally mutual funds, were next, with a 257 percent increase from 1979 to 1985. Smaller institutional investors increased the proportion of their holdings in NASDAQ/OTC stocks even more than larger institutions did. While the largest proportion of the value of common stocks in institutional portfolios was in NYSE-listed stocks, the NASDAQ/OTC market was a rapidly growing second in importance, accounting for nearly 17 percent of the stocks held by the intermediate-sized institutions and almost 10 percent of the largest institutions' holdings.

The majority of NASDAQ/OTC stocks held by institutions with $100 million or more in equities are on the NASDAQ National Market System (NASDAQ/NMS) — slightly over 8 percent of the portfolios of the largest institutions and 16 percent of the portfolios of the intermediate-sized group. Amex stocks account for somewhat under 4 percent of the common stocks held by the largest institutions and 4 percent of the stocks held by the intermediate group.

Shareholder Voting Rights

In response to the growing national debate on the issue of shareholder voting rights, the NASD also commissioned a study by University of Chicago School of Law Professor Daniel R. Fischel, a noted economist and lawyer, to analyze the related legal, economic and public interest issue. In 1986, the NASD distributed Professor Fischel's report, which found that while one share, one vote was the preferred standard for a majority of publicly held companies, no pattern of abuse appeared to warrant a legally mandated standard of one share, one vote. As the year ended, the national debate on the issue continued.

Short-Sale Regulation

In response to recommendations developed for the NASD in 1986 by former SEC Commissioner Irving M. Pollack in his study on short-sale practices in the securities markets, the NASD began collecting and publicly disseminating, via the financial press, open short-interest positions of members and customers in all NASDAQ securities. Related to that action, the NASD also adopted a requirement that members who have buy-ins returned from clearing corporations re-issue the buy-ins for cash or guaranteed delivery.

The NASD had previously acted to require order tickets to be marked long or short, tightened the borrowing and delivery requirements on trades initiated by public customers, required temporary reporting of short interest to the NASD and petitioned the SEC to adopt a rule restricting short sales made after an offering is filed with the SEC from being covered out of the filing.

The Pollack study, commissioned in November 1985, did not indicate the need for a tick test for short sales. On this matter, the study stated "... tick [test] restrictions that broadly impact all short-selling activity may be of questionable utility."

Center For Research in Security Prices (CRSP)

In 1986, the University of Chicago's Center for Research in Security Prices (CRSP) completed a three-year project to develop a comprehensive data base of historical prices for 4,700 NASDAQ common stocks. The CRSP files now contain daily information about trading, capitalization and returns for all common stocks quoted on the NASDAQ System since December 1972. Financed jointly by the NASD and Dimensional Fund Advisers, Inc., the project will facilitate academic and institutional research of the NASDAQ market.

Automated Services Improve NASDAQ Market Service

Existing Services

- Small Order Execution System. The NASD's Small Order Execution System, first introduced in 1984, automatically executes transactions of 1,000 shares or less in NASDAQ/NMS securities and 500 shares or less in other NASDAQ securities. SOES is unique among automated trading systems because it offers automatic trade detail reporting for clearing and compliance. In 1986, volume in SOES averaged about 8,000 trades and 2 million shares per day. On heavy volume days, SOES volume increases far more rapidly than overall volume. In 1986, use of the system increased by 212 percent, with nearly a half-billion shares traded.

  By eliminating telephone negotiations and paperwork, SOES contributes significantly to the efficiency of members in processing customers' orders, particularly on high volume days.

- Foreign Terminal Interface. A pilot that began in 1985 to link non-NASDAQ (or "foreign") terminals of members to the NASDAQ System was expanded in 1986 with the addition of a number of firms that have linked their internal systems with the NASDAQ network.

- Computer-to-Computer Interface. First introduced in 1983, the CTCI arrangement allows firms to link their in-house computers with the NASDAQ System mainframe. Firms may now use CTCI to enter orders into SOES. In addition, CTCI is available to service bureaus.

- Trade Acceptance and Reconciliation Service. Uncompared over-the-counter trades dropped to less than 6 percent in 1986, largely due to increased use of TARS. The 76 TARS subscribers account for over 80 percent of all over-the-counter cleared transactions.

  TARS allows subscribers to enter original trade data directly through their terminals and have the data transmitted to their clearing corporations. The next day, TARS provides subscribers with a terminal display of the details of their compared and uncompared trades. Subscribers can then make any on-line adjustments to resolve uncompared trades.

  As worldwide linkages with clearing organizations are developed, the ability of TARS to handle original entry of trading data will greatly enhance the processing of international trades.

- Municipal Bond Acceptance and Reconciliation Service. In late 1986, the NASD introduced a new data service for firms doing a municipal securities business that expedites the clearing and settlement of trades on-line. Popularly called MBARS, this service is available through either a NASDAQ terminal or certain compatible PCs. It was developed as an enhancement to the TARS system, although firms can subscribe to MBARS as a separate service.

• Mutual Fund Quotation Collection Increases. NASDAQ's Mutual Fund Quotation Service collects quotations daily for nearly 1,500 mutual and money market funds — 25 percent more than in 1985 — and disseminates them to newswires and the media. With this service being completely automated in 1986, all mutual fund quotes can now be entered through NASDAQ terminals. A fund can qualify for participation in the quotation service if it has 1,000 shareholders or $25 million in net assets. The fund must also maintain 750 shareholders or $15 million in net assets for continued participation.

A Supplemental Service is now available for funds that do not meet the standard eligibility criteria but have at least 300 shareholders. Quotations on these funds are collected by NASDAQ Operations and disseminated over Level 1 terminals.

Services to Be Offered in 1987

• New-Generation Terminals. Methods of delivering quotations and other information to NASDAQ market makers and financial institutions continue to evolve. The first-generation NASDAQ terminal, manufactured by Bunker Ramo and widely used in the 1970s, was replaced in 1980 by the Harris terminal, which displayed substantially more information at twice the speed. In 1986, the NASD developed a distributed data service that will take advantage of personal computer technology to provide NASDAQ subscribers with a wealth of automated services never before available on NASDAQ equipment: market minding, dynamic screen updates, personalized ticker service, parameter break alerts and trade quote reviews.

• Ticker Service. A new ticker broadcast service will soon help members and investors monitor trading activity in the NASDAQ market. It will provide a continuous, electronic tape of all trades in NASDAQ/NMS securities as they are reported.

• Automated Confirmation Transaction System. The NASD is now developing a semi-automated facility for processing trades of every size. After traders negotiate by telephone, they can enter trade detail into the new system for display on the contra-party's terminal. When all aspects of the trade are properly entered, the trade will be treated as locked-in and will be automatically reported to the trade dissemination system and the clearing corporation. Thus, benefits already available to users of the NASD's Small Order Execution System will also be available for conventional orders of every size.

• Overseas Locations to Receive NASDAQ Service. Plans to extend the reach of Level 2/3 service to two countries outside the U.S. have developed successfully with full interactive service for the United Kingdom and Puerto Rico scheduled for spring of 1987. This capability will permit member firms in those regions to monitor and maintain markets as well as enter orders through SOES.

Surveillance of the NASDAQ Market

The NASD employs state-of-the-art automated systems for the continuous surveillance of the NASDAQ market. Price and volume parameters are set in the System for every NASDAQ security so that unusual trading patterns are automatically flagged for immediate review.

Analysts in the NASD Market Surveillance Section, which is the front line in the regulation of trading in NASDAQ securities, respond to these alerts by investigating the causes of unusual price movements or sudden swings in volume. Among the various computer-generated reports that aid the staff in detecting instances of possible insider trading, market manipulation and other questionable trading practices are the following:

- Pricewatch monitors intra-day fluctuations in each NASDAQ security and provides automated alerts to significant movements.

- Volumewatch follows real-time, intra-day volume fluctuations in NASDAQ/NMS issues and flags those with substantial increases as they occur.

- Blockwatch provides real-time notifications of block-sized trades in NASDAQ/NMS securities, complete with the identity of the reporting firm, as well as the price, size and time of the trade.

- Quote/Trade Comparison System monitors compliance with the NASDAQ/NMS trade reporting rules. For the 12.2 million trades in NASDAQ/NMS issues in 1986, 99.4 percent were reported at prices equal to or better than the prevailing market.

- Insider Exception System identifies price and volume movements before and after news releases by NASDAQ companies to determine the potential for insider trading.

- NASDAQ Equity Audit Trail is one of the NASD's latest surveillance tools. It provides a fully integrated data base of second-by-second quotation, transaction and clearing information for all NASDAQ securities on a firm-by-firm basis.

- NASDAQ Stockwatch Report signals unusual price and volume fluctuations over weekly time periods for each NASDAQ issue, showing the identity of those firms responsible for the largest percentage of total volume. In 1986, this report generated 18,596 historical price and volume alerts.

- Retail Account Name Search, which will become operational in 1987, is designed to strengthen the NASD's ability to detect insider trading. It will be used to immediately identify retail accounts that exhibit questionable trading activity.

Market Surveillance in 1986

In 1986, automated market surveillance systems for monitoring of NASDAQ trading triggered 16,556 on-line price and volume alerts leading to 256 formal investigations. The NASD's Market Surveillance Committee, which is the member-controlled disciplinary body for the NASDAQ market, reviews each investigation for apparent rule violations.

The Market Surveillance Section also institutes quotation halts of NASDAQ securities, typically to allow a company sufficient time — generally one hour — to disseminate material news that is likely to affect the price of its stock. During 1986, 1,065 quotation halts were imposed.

In 1986, the NASD Board of Governors submitted a proposed rule to the SEC that would require NASD members to halt trading in NASDAQ securities while issuers disseminate material news to the public.

The Market Surveillance Committee ordered a number of major disciplinary actions for market-related violations — such as noncompliance with SOES rules, manipulation, fraudulent mark-ups and marking the close — and meted out penalties that included the suspension of two member firms as market makers in NASDAQ securities, the suspension of four individuals for periods up to 90 days and the assignment of fines totaling nearly $750,000.

Broker-Dealer Surveillance

The NASD also conducts a nationwide, on-site broker-dealer inspection program. A staff of 338 examiners located in 14 district offices performed 4,479 examinations of member firms in 1986. Examiners also reviewed 4,252 customer complaints and 1,357 special sales-practice-related situations.

The NASD's 13 District Business Conduct Committees ordered 668 formal actions, rendered 322 disciplinary decisions and accepted 16 summary complaints and 182 letters of acceptance, waiver and consent. These actions led to the expulsion of eight firms, the barring of 85 individuals and the suspension of 10 firms and 76 individuals.

Print, Electronic Media Feature NASDAQ

The principal newspaper stock table for the NASDAQ market reports volume and high, low and closing prices for NASDAQ National Market System securities. This table, covering more than 2,800 NASDAQ/NMS issues, appears in 101 newspapers — 98 in the U.S. and three overseas. Most of these newspapers also carry volume and bid/ask quotation data on about 400 NASDAQ securities that are eligible to trade in NASDAQ/NMS but whose issuers have not yet applied for such trading.

A table of 1,000 NASDAQ/NMS securities appears in 64 newspapers, 62 in the U.S. and two overseas. Several publications carry more NASDAQ data than the table of 2,800 NASDAQ/NMS issues:

- Media General's Financial Weekly covers all of the more than 5,200 NASDAQ securities.
- The Wall Street Journal daily carries the Additional List of 1,040 of the most active, smaller issues with bid/ask quotations.
- The New York Times daily carries the top 500 of these issues in its Supplemental List.
- Barrons's, the Los Angeles Times and the Newark Star-Ledger carry the Additional List of 1,040 securities on Monday.

Some 80 newspapers that do not publish the major NASDAQ stock tables carry regional lists of NASDAQ securities, assembled by the press wire services and consisting of 200 to 500 issues, or local lists of 10 to 100 issues. The NASD has 150 Local Quotations Committees across the U.S. to keep the local lists consistent with the interests of local investors.
